

THE
CHRISTIAN HARMONY: OR THE
SECOND PART OF THE ART OF SINGING:
Comprising a Select Variety of PSALM and HYMN TUNES:
CALCULATED FOR SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES.

BY ANDREW LAW.

This Plan of music has many advantages over the old method. It will assist, both the Learner and the Performer, in ascertaining the true sounds of the notes in instances where the old method can afford no aid for that purpose.

This method marks, with certainty, the intervals, or distances of sounds. The places of the tones and semitones, the major and minor thirds and fourths are always in view. The semitones lie between the diamond and the square, and the quarter of a diamond and the square. Hence, when any two notes are placed at the distance of a second, a third, or a fourth, it will be instantly known from the sight of the characters, whether it be the major, or the minor second, third, or fourth. This is an advantage which the old method can never possess; for it cannot be known from the common notes upon lines and spaces whether these intervals be major, or minor, only by referring back to the cliffs, but here it is visible in every bar.

The diamond note is never double in the same octave. It is fixed between the two keys, and is the seventh degree of the sharp key and the second degree of the flat key. The quarter of a diamond and the square which immediately succeed each other in ascending, or in descending, are, the third and fourth degrees of the sharp key, and the fifth and sixth degrees of the flat key.

From this view of the subject, it will not be difficult to ascertain the degrees of the key, for if any one degree be known, all the other degrees will follow of course. The last note of the bass is always the square in the sharp key, and the quarter of a diamond in the flat key. Therefore by looking at the last note of the bass, and then at a few bars of the tune, either the diamond, or the quarter of a diamond and square together, will appear, by which the seventh degree, or the third and fourth of the sharp key will be known; and the second degree, or fifth and sixth of the flat key. Hence it will follow, that the task of the Learner, and the burden of the Performer will be diminished, and, that the Art will be rendered easy and familiar.

THE First Part of the Art of Singing, was published two years ago. The Second Part, or the Christian Harmony, is here completed. In connection with the First, it will be found a very considerable advance towards an assortment of Church Music.

NOTES.

The tunes with a Chorus, such as Washington, Kedron, Ashley and Myra, the Chorus may be sung after each verse, or only after the last.

The first part of the Funeral Piece is to be sung in the three verses which are set to it, before the other part is sung.

When the tune called Doncaster is sung in the second verse, the last line but one will require the two minims in the bar with the semibreve rest, to be sung as semibreves, and the rest to be omitted. It may also be sung in any common metre psalm or hymn, by making the same alteration in the other instances, where there are semibreve rests in the middle of a line, and by adding a dot to the note following the semibreve rest in the third line, leaving out the minim rest in the same bar. Other tunes which have rests in the middle of lines, when those rests break words of more than one syllable, they may be omitted.

Tunes which require the repetition of some words to complete the tune, will, in some instances, require a different repetition; as in Hotham, the second verse, "With the shadow," this may be done by throwing out the slur.

Some hymns have an unequal number of syllables in some lines, and require two notes to one syllable; an instance of this is found in the hymn set to Galilee, the first word, where the two crotchets are sung as one minim, and the first word of the fifth line of the fifth verse is sung in the same manner.

Those parts of tunes, over which the word unisons, or octaves is placed, the whole choir sing the same part.
