THE

KNOW

May it please Your Majesty,

THE FOLLOWING

WORK, for which and Himself the Editor humbly intreats your gracious Protection, contains a complete Compilation of English Church-Music from the principal Productions of the several Writers, who have been esteemed excellent in that Species of Composition since the Reformation, and of whom the Chief have had the Honour to serve in the CHAPELS of Your ROYAL PREDECESSORS.

Your Majesty's continual Goodness in assisting the ARTS and SCIENCES naturally leads the Professors of them to solicit your Patronage; And none perhaps, in the whole Circle, stands more in need, at present, of that POWERFUL RECOMMENDATION than the SUBLIMER Music; As it is but too apparent, that even the Works of a Handel owe to it, in a great Measure, their Support.

That Your Majesty may long continue the Generous Patron of real Merit; That your Illustrious Example may have its just Effect; And that Providence may bestow upon YOU ABUNDANTLY its choicest Blessings, whatever can dignify the Great or reward the Good, is the earnest Prayer of

Your Majesty's

Most Dutiful
Subject and Servant.

William Boyce

WHEN I first undertook this Work, I had not sufficiently considered the length of time necessary to complete it, which occasioned my proposing to deliver the Volumes much sooner than it was possible for me to effect: However, I hope it will appear by the execution that this has been the single instance in which I have not fully performed my engagement.

It may easily be discerned in the perusal of this collection, that the pieces which were composed between the Reformation and Restauration are in a more grave style than those written since; a gravity in Church Music having been particularly ordered by Authority in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, with intent to distinguish it from every other Species, calculated for secular purposes; but on the return of King Charles the Second from his long exile in Foreign Countries, where a lighter kind of Church Music prevailed, and which better suited the gay disposition of that Monarch and his Court, the Musicians of his Chapel found it their interest to deviate in some measure from the former plan, by adding a variety and liveliness, especially in their Anthems. which had not been customary before: Yet, notwithstanding this alteration of Style, they still preserved a solemnity and learning in their Compositions which have rendered them lasting monuments of ingenuity and expression.

NOR have the more early writers been wanting in expression, although it is not so particularly marked, for their music being generally full, and composed of many parts, they seem to have aimed at giving to each of these an equal degree of sweetness, as may be conjectured from the elegance and purity of the several melodies; and, it must be confessed, that their skill in the joining and intermixing them in the formation of harmony, are indubitable testimonies of their indefatigable application, and eminent abilities. The Anthems of TALLIS, TYE, BIRD, and GIBBONS, with the Morning Service of FARRANT, &c. abound with admirable examples of this kind of art and expression.

HAD I not been under a restriction by the last Will and Testament of the late Dr. MAURICE GREENE, I should have inserted some valuable pieces of his, particularly his Service, a very learned and judicious composition, and highly deserving of preservation: There are also Three ancient Services by NATHANIEL PATRICK, ADRIAN BATTEN, and ALBERTUS BRIAN, with Two by the late Mr. CHARLES KING, Almoner, and Vicar Choral of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, London, the one in the key of Ffa<sup>u</sup>t, the other in B flat, which I would willingly have found room for, could it have been done without omitting what appeared to me to claim the preference.

I AM truly sensible how much I owe to the goodness of Providence in granting me health and perseverance to labour through this very difficult, and tedious business, and it will be a most grateful reflection to me hereafter, that I have been enabled to do justice to these excellent productions of my Countrymen, by conveying them to Posterity in a more respectful and accurate manner than hath yet been experienced in any other musical publication whatever.

I CANNOT finally quit this undertaking without acknowledging my obligations to those members of our Choirs who have kindly assisted me with copies to forward it, and in particular to my worthy Friends the Rev. Mr. WILLIAM GOSTLING, of Canterbury Cathedral, Mr. JAMES KENT, Organist of the Cathedral and College at Winchester, Dr. WILLIAM HAYES, Music Professor in the University of Oxford, and Dr. SAMUEL HOWARD, of London, they all having been materially useful in the progress of the work, more especially the last-mentioned, who by his friendly zeal and assistance left nothing undone in his power, to lessen my trouble in it, and to render the task easy and agreeable to me.

WILLIAM BOYCE.

A

AUTHORS continued.*

JOHN BULL was educated under William Blitheman, Organist to Queen Elizabeth, and appointed one of the Gentlemen of her Chapel in January 1585. In the year 1586 he was admitted Batchelor of Music at Oxford, and soon after commenced Doctor in the said faculty at Cambridge. On the demise of Blitheman in 1591 he succeeded him as Organist of the Royal Chapel: And upon the establishment of Gresham College in 1596 he was chosen Music Professor there, by the recommendation of the Queen.

About the year 1601 his health being much impaired, he was advised to travel, and had leave given him to put in a Deputy to supply his places during his absence, which Substitute was Thomas Bird, Son of William Bird of the Queen's Chapel: He visited France, Spain, and Germany, and continued abroad somewhat more than a twelvemonth, when he returned, after having given such specimens of his musical abilities as to raise his character to an uncommon degree of reputation.

On the 16th of July 1607, when King James the First, together with Prince Henry, and many of the chief Nobility dined with the Merchant-Taylor's Company at their Hall in the city of London, Dr. Bull, who was a member of that Company, entertained this Royal and Noble Assembly, by playing on an Organ placed there for that purpose.

His performances on this Instrument were esteemed superior to those of any contemporary Artist, and it required no small portion of merit to excell; for by the generality of the compositions for keyed Instruments of that time, not his only, but those of Tallis, William Bird, Orlando Gibbons, &c. it appears that great practice was necessary to have acquired an easy execution of them.

In the December of 1607 he resigned his Professorship in Gresham College, but continued in England until the year 1613, when he took a final leave of it, and engaged in the service of the Arch-duke of Austria, in the Netherlands, being then fifty years of age. He afterwards removed from thence into Germany; the latest account received, left him at Hamburg in 1622: How long he lived after this is not certainly known, nor where he died, for some have said it was at the last-mentioned place, others at Lubeck.

His productions are valuable and numerous, many of them vocal, and a great part designed solely for the Organ, Virginal, &c; very few have been printed, and those only in detached and miscellaneous publications.

WILLIAM TURNER was one of the children of the Chapel Royal soon after the Restauration, and admitted a Gentleman thereof October the 11th, 1669. He afterwards obtained the places of Vicar Choral of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, London, and Lay Vicar of St. Peter, Westminster: And in the year 1691 commenced Doctor in Music at Cambridge.

Several reputable pieces for the Church Service were composed by him, and one particularly, in conjunction with Humphrys, and Blow, which was named the Club Anthem: The words beginning "I will alway give thanks." They agreed each to set different verses, and to connect and form them into a regular performance; to remain as a memorial of their fraternal esteem and friendship.

He had the singular honour of being a Gentleman of the Royal Chapels to seven Kings and Queens successively, and in the former part of his life, his voice, which was a high Contra-Tenor, recommended him to much favour.

He died on the 13th of January 1740, at a very advanced age, and was buried in Westminster-Abbey Cloisters, in the same grave, and at the same time with his wife Elizabeth, whose death happened four days before his own, after their having been married but a few years short of seventy, and lived together, to the very last hour, in the utmost amity and affection.

Their only child and daughter was wife to the late Mr. John Robinson, Organist of Westminster-Abbey, &c. who had also been one of the children of the Chapel under Dr. Blow, and was a most excellent performer on the Organ. The double Chant at the end of the first Volume is of his composition.
